Modelling multivariate categorical data is not easy and visualising the data is even harder. Some interesting graphics have been proposed and many are implemented in the R package \texttt{vcd}. Not all of these suggestions are as successful as we would like, as they do not always manage to show much information. A better approach is provided by the family of mosaic plot variants, especially when equipped with interactive…