

Visiting professor in Economics

The Department of Applied Economics at Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona is opening one-year position (not renewable) at a level of assistant professor starting in September 2015.

This position involves teaching loads (at level of Principle of Economics) and, possibly, the supervision of undergraduate thesis. The gross salary is around 31.000 € (year).

The potential candidate must hold at PhD in Economics at the time to be appointed. The preferred specialization is applied economics, but also other profiles will be also taken into account. Good knowledge of Spanish and/or Catalan is a requirement.

The Department of Applied Economics is a research oriented environment (<http://www.uab.cat/web/departament-of-applied-economics-1293090800192.html>).

The department will provide a personal work space and access to all the infrastructure of the UAB Campus.

Applications can be submitted in Catalan, Spanish or English and must include the following:

- Application Letter
- A copy of the PhD diploma or any other document confirming the completion of the PhD program,
- A detailed curriculum vitae of the applicant,
- If available, teaching evaluations,
- Two letters of references.

Applications must be received before JULY 20th 2015 and they will be treated in the strictest confidentiality. All the material has to be sent to this address: aplicada.job@gmail.com

The appointment will start on September 15th 2015 and it will last for 12 months. This contract will not be extended or renewed.

For further information, please contact prof. José-Luis Roig (josepluis.roig@uab.cat).