Job title: Games Internship

Job description

This is a unique opportunity to contribute to the direction and strategy of the new games & interactive role within the British Council. This internship is jointly situated between our Film and Creative Economy teams, reflecting a natural convergence between our programs in relation to new forms of creativity in our organization. This presents an exciting time, as our organization's Arts program expands to include more diverse media, as well as acting as an ambassador for British games and interactive media around the globe; building recognition and support of games and interactive media as vectors of British art and culture. As a key member of a new and innovative Arts project, you will be expected to bring a new perspective to the team, researching and mapping the UK's creative & experimental game makers, communities, and events. You will also have the opportunity to work with key industry partners to develop opportunities with both existing and new partners, including BAFTA, BFI, the National Videogames Arcade, and the London Games Festival. The ideal candidate will have a great knowledge of games development practices and processes as well as being able to articulate their understanding of games' relationship to other creative forms such as theatre, literature, and film.

Requirements

Applications close for our 2017 scheme on Sunday, 26 February at 23:59.

You must currently be a student, in at least your second year at University, and on target for a 2:1 degree (or equivalent), or you may also have graduated from your Bachelor's degree in 2016 achieving a 2:1 or above. You must hold at least a grade C or equivalent in Math's and English at GCSE. You must have the right to work in the UK without restriction for the duration of the program. You must be available for the whole 10-week period without taking time for holiday. You must be available for a half day assessment center on either the 22 or 24 March 2017.

Further information

Since we were set up in 1934, the British Council has developed thousands of partnerships with over 100 countries all over the world. It is a job that we take tremendous pride in, but none of it would be possible without the hard work of our teams in the UK. If you are keen to learn more about working for a global organization, and to make a real difference over the summer, then this opportunity is definitely for you. Each year we look to bring fresh ideas to the organization by taking a cohort of interns over the summer. We get to work with new talent and creativity, plus an insight into how we can deliver the best opportunities to young people; you get to learn new skills while on a paid internship and kick start to your international career. This year, we are looking for candidates with digital skills that hold the creative capability to develop impactful solutions to complex, real world problems for a truly global organization. If you are a recent graduate or undergraduate who is passionate about technology and eager to learn in our fast-paced environment then we would love to hear from you.
