

Accelerate your professional development...and be Unique

Zafira Castaño Corsino, PhD

Faculty, Harvard Medical School
President/Co-Founder, IMFAHE Foundation
<https://www.linkedin.com/in/zafiracastano>

Dr. Zafira Castaño studies the mechanisms of breast cancer progression. She is (co)authored and/or co-author of 14 scientific publications, reviewer at several journals, lecturer at Harvard Medical School, and co-inventor of a low cost tool to predict patients at high risk to develop metastasis (BWH No. 21719). She received the "Postdoctoral Research Fellow Leadership Award" in 2014, "BWH Mentoring Award" in 2015 and the "Program Award for Culture of Excellence in Mentoring" in 2016 by Harvard University.

Workshop created in collaboration with Nature Publishing Group, and released for the first time in Spain!

Goals:

- ① Understand what are and why international networks are important for your professional development,
- ② Build your own international network on real time.

Don't miss this opportunity to interact for the first time with pre- and post-graduate students from 11 different Spanish universities and Spanish professionals affiliated to the most prestigious universities in the world, like Google, Harvard or Princeton among others!

IMFAHE Foundation, in collaboration with Spanish universities, connects students with overseas mentors (primarily in STEM fields) to help develop mentorship and career opportunities locally and globally. IMFAHE promotes excellence and career development through mentorship, webinars, workshops and international fellowships .

Free workshop (20 min): December 5th 2017 at 12pm (EDT)/ 6pm (Spain-Peninsula)

<https://zoom.us/j/654457705>

