Welcome to the ICA-CCR Europe Conference!

Markus Hanisch,
Humboldt-Universität zu
Berlin, Conference Chair

This ICA - CCR European Research Conference 2019 in Berlin will discuss the role of cooperative organizations in ongoing transformations. Our-three-day event will bring together the most renowned scholars of cooperative studies around the world. We are excited to discuss with you through more than 40 different pre- and post-conference events, forums, panel sessions, parallel sessions and podiums.

What could the role of organizations based on voluntary membership, economic cooperation, and democratic rule be in key areas such as business transformation, sustainable resource management, the democratization of service infrastructures, or civil society activation? What are the new spaces cooperative business models may occupy? What contributions could cooperative networks and associations at different levels of aggregation make? At the level of case analysis, conference participants will discuss how cooperatives manage changes as well as how cooperatives influence the speed by which members and communities are affected by change. Across societal and organizational levels, participants will discuss the role of cooperative networks and associations as potential knowledge brokers and co-designers of the process of transformation.

We wish you a wonderful and inspiring time here with us at Humboldt-University Berlin!

We gratefully acknowledge the support of our friends and partners from the cooperative world who have helped us in organizing, financing and staffing this conference!

Teehaus im Englischen Garten
Altonaer Straße 2
D-10557 Berlin
+49 (0)30 39 480 400

If you would like to take a walk from the conference venue to the dinner location, you should allot roughly 45 minutes for your trip. Alternatively, you may take public transit, which should take around 15 minutes. In order to take public transit, you should walk to the “Bahnhof Berlin Friedrichstraße.” At the station, take S3, S4, or S7 westbound and disembark at Bellevue, after which you will need only three minutes to walk to the Teehaus im Englischen Garten Berlin, where we will convene for the conference dinner.
