Dónde no publicar: relación y análisis de potenciales fraudes editoriales en revistas académicas de Salud

OBJETIVO

El objetivo de este trabajo es ofrecer una herramienta para identificar fraudes en revistas académicas de salud, mediante el análisis del grado de cumplimiento de los criterios de calidad de fuentes seleccionadas.

MÉTODO

Para obtener una lista específica de revistas de salud potencialmente fraudulentas, se comienza haciendo una selección, partiendo de dos fuentes distintas:

- Por un lado, se incorporan revistas de listas negras multidisciplinares disponibles en abierto (Beall List y Kscien). Las revistas se seleccionan utilizando palabras clave del Tesauro MeSH.
- Por otro, se incorporan revistas previamente señaladas como potencialmente fraudulentas por la bibliografía especializada.

Con el objetivo de analizar el posible fraude, se utilizan diferentes fuentes que ayudan a valorar la calidad de las revistas académicas y, específicamente, de las revistas académicas de salud. El trabajo finaliza cotejando las revistas de la lista con estas fuentes, y verificando si están indexadas o cumplen con los criterios de calidad.

PRESENTACIÓN DE LOS DATOS: Airtable

La herramienta se presenta en un software gratuito, Airtable, que funciona de manera similar al Excel pero con más funcionalidades: permite presentar datos en la nube, compartirlos, permite la interactividad de los usuarios y es posible integrarla en WordPress.

Se accede desde la página del Servicio de Apoyo a la Investigación de las bibliotecas de la Universitat de València: "On no publicar".
