Resume:

Dr. Rosa Giménez-Moreno is Associate Professor of the Department of English and German Studies at the University of Valencia. Since 1992 she worked in the Teaching Units of English Language and Linguistics and English for Specific Purposes. She holds a MA and PhD in Linguistics and Modern English Language from the University of Nottingham and the University of Valencia, respectively. She also obtained a Qualification in Teaching of English for Business by the London Guildhall University and London Chamber of Commerce and Industry Examination Board. She is founding member of the Interuniversity Institute of Modern Applied Languages at the UV (IULMA-Valencia).

For about three decades she has taught Professional and Academic English courses in undergraduate degrees in English Philology, Tourism, Economics and Business Studies. She has collaborated in several editions of the Specialized Training Course in Legal and Administrative English offered by the Ministry of Justice and Public Administrations. He has also taught specialised courses in various postgraduate degrees such as the Master in Advanced English Studies, Master in Economic Internationalization, Master in Tourism Management and Planning, Master in Research in Languages and Literatures, and the Master in EU and International Relations.

She has been Coordinator of the English for Specific Purposes Teaching Unit and the Teaching Area of English Philology within the Department of English and German Studies. She has also been International Mobility Coordinator for Tourism Studies (Faculty of Economics), and for English Studies (Faculty of Philology, Translation and Communication). She has collaborated with several European universities in teaching activities, abroad exchange programmes and research projects such as Liverpool University, Nottingham University, Roehampton University, South Bank University, Stockholm University, University of Paris, Upsala University, among others.

Her main area of research is Professional and Academic Communication, especially within the field of Social Sciences. She has also done extensive research on Language Variation, Interpersonal Pragmatics and Sociolinguistics (i.e. studies on genre variation and identity, register and interpersonal variation). She has participated in the organisation of national and international conferences, and in scientific committees of respected organizations such as AESLA, being external reviewer of prestigious journals such as Ibérica or Journal of Pragmatics. See below for selected and detailed information on her professional activity in the last 20 years (only last 10 in conference contributions).
