TEACHING METHODOLOGY

Theoretical classes: We will begin with an introduction to the theoretical foundations of text commentary before beginning the study and analysis of the works indicated in the syllabus. Afterwards, each of the two topics will begin with a brief theoretical introduction as a context and then move on to analysis and commentary.

Practical classes: Students will begin by reading and commenting in class on the beginning of each work and then work in collaboration with each other and with the teacher, using the relevant research tools as well as technological and AI tools such as assisted bibliographical and lexicographical searches, etc., to prepare comments and oral and written presentations on parts of each work which will be shared in seminar sessions. Emphasis will be placed on the correct formal written presentation of the work, writing, structure and the correct form of bibliographical citation.

This subject participates in the Teaching Innovation Project UV-SFPIE_PIEC_2736982 and is included in the Consolidated Innovation Group GCID23_2575656. During the development of the classes, activities designed by this project will be carried out.

EVALUATION

The general grading system follows the regulations of the Universitat de València approved by the Consell de Govern on 30 May 2017 (ACGV 108/2017).

The evaluation will consist of 2 different parts:

- a) Completion and oral presentation of work during the course 25%.
- b) Partial test on the second topic (Petrarcha's Canzoniere): 25%.
- c) Partial test on the third topic (Ariosto's Orlando Furioso): 25%

To pass the course as a whole, it is necessary to achieve at least a pass mark in each of the parts.

Assessment criteria

The correct application of the analysis and commentary techniques studied in each of the three submitted papers will be taken into account. The originality of the analysis, the appropriate use of the bibliography, and linguistic correctness will also be taken into account. In the oral presentations of the commentaries, communicative skills and the capacity for synthesis and exposition will also be assessed.

Of the competences mentioned above, priority will be given in the assessment to 21 (knowledge and application of the current methodologies of literary theory and criticism) and 23 (knowledge of literature or literatures in a foreign language).

All oral and written exercises will take into account competence 18 (producing and understanding oral and written texts in a foreign language) and, therefore, communicative skills in Italian.

Intellectual honesty is vital in academic communities and for the fair evaluation of student work. All work submitted in this course must be of original authorship. Work that makes use of fraudulent collaboration or composition with the aid of artificial intelligence (ChatGPT or others) will not be accepted, except for its use as part of the tools authorised by the faculty in specific cases and according to the uses determined by the faculty during the course.
