SUMMARY

Classic Spanish Cinema is an elective course of the Degree in Audiovisual Communication.

Study of the modes of representation in Spanish cinema as an industry, institution and discourse, both from a theoretical-analytical and historical perspective, from its beginning to 1960.

PREVIOUS KNOWLEDGE

RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER SUBJECTS OF THE SAME DEGREE

There are no specified enrollment restrictions with other subjects of the curriculum.

OTHER REQUIREMENTS

No other types of requirements are considered.

COMPETENCES / LEARNING OUTCOMES

Students must be able to apply their knowledge to their work or vocation in a professional manner and have acquired the competences required for the preparation and defence of arguments and for problem solving in their field of study.

Students must have acquired knowledge and understanding in a specific field of study, on the basis of general secondary education and at a level that includes mainly knowledge drawn from advanced textbooks, but also some cutting-edge knowledge in their field of study.

Students must have developed the learning skills needed to undertake further study with a high degree of autonomy.

Students should be able to defend a culture of peace and respect for the fundamental human rights within the processes of communication, specifically in regards to equality between women and men in all types of communication (informative, interpretative, semiotic, dialogic and opinion).

Students should be able to obtain and select relevant information and sources in order to solve problems and elaborate on strategies.

Students should be able to search for, select, read, interpret and analyse both written and audiovisual texts and documents (analytically, synthetically and critically).

Students should be able to work as a team, communicate their own ideas and integrate themselves into group projects aimed at achieving results.

Students should have an understanding of own and other social, historical, economic and cultural aspects within their relevant contexts.

Students should have an understanding of the different languages, codes and modes of representation used in the different technological and audiovisual mediums such as photography, cinema, radio, television, electronic image and video, internet etc., through their own individual industries and aesthetics, as well as through the evolution of their social and cultural relevance through time. This should generate the ability to analyse stories and audiovisual works, considering the iconic messages of the texts as products of the social, political and cultural conditions in which they were produced.

Students should show solidarity with people across the planet, as well as knowledge of the main cultural currents in relation to individual and collective values and respect for human life.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

Presencial activities

Face-to-face teaching will follow the following methodologies:

- Lecture-based sessions: teaching methodology based on the structured oral presentation by the lecturer, who conveys the core content of the course in a clear and well-argued manner. In the context of Classic Spanish Cinema, it is not conceived as a one-way process, but rather as a strategy that fosters active student participation through questions, guided debates, and collective analyses, especially using audiovisual excerpts from the mandatory viewing films. This interaction enriches the learning experience, facilitates the understanding of key concepts, and stimulates critical thinking.
- Case study and analysis: based on the conceptual content presented and discussed by the lecturer during the lectures, supported by concrete examples, students are able to identify and apply these concepts following the established methodological guidelines. This approach enables the application of theoretical frameworks to new case studies, fosters critical thinking, and contributes to the development of key analytical skills necessary for understanding semiotic processes in cultural and media contexts.

Non presencial activities

Students will carry out the following non-face-to-face activities:

- Individual assignments: individual assignments follow the analytical models used by the lecturer in class and are supported by the consultation of specialised bibliography. This allows students to apply the knowledge acquired in class autonomously and to broaden their critical understanding through engagement with relevant academic texts. This practice not only strengthens analytical skills and competence in the use of specific methodological tools, but also encourages the integration of solid theoretical frameworks into interpretative work. This methodology fosters personal reflection, analytical thinking, and intellectual engagement fundamental elements in academic training in film studies.
- Independent Study and Work: students must prepare for the final exam using their class notes, the materials provided by the lecturer, and the film analyses developed in class with active student participation. Engaging with these different types of materials enables them to identify key ideas, establish connections between core concepts, and apply them to practical cases, thereby facilitating a clearer and deeper understanding of the course content. Individual or group tutorials may be requested to resolve any doubts.
- Class preparation: Student participation in individual or group tutorials to clarify doubts.
- Attendance at additional activities proposed by the teaching staff and related to the course content.

Sustainable Development Goals

This course pays special attention to the following Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs):

- SDG 4, Quality Education, Target 7: Ensure that all learners acquire the knowledge and skills needed to promote sustainable development, including education for human rights, gender equality, a culture of peace and non-violence, global citizenship, and appreciation of cultural diversity and of culture's contribution to sustainable development.

- SDG 5, Gender Equality, Target 1: End all forms of discrimination against all women and girls everywhere.

EVALUATION

The general grading system will follow the University of Valencia's Assessment and Grading Regulations for Bachelor's and Master's degrees, approved by the Governing Council on May 30, 2017 (ACGUV 108/2017).

Assessment in the first examination period

The assessment in the first examination period will be carried out in the following way:

- Final written test (70%). The exam will include four medium-length questions, which require well-structured and reasoned answers. These questions assess the student's ability to explain key concepts, define relevant terms, and apply theoretical frameworks to practical cases. In order to pass the course, students must obtain a minimum score of 5 out of 10 on the exam. It is recoverable in the second examination period.
- Submission of activities, outlines, summaries and/or assigned texts (30%). The individual assignment will consist of a theoretical-practical activity completed outside the classroom. Students will apply the course concepts and methodologies to specific cases and to the analysis of film texts not discussed during class. This activity fosters comprehension and analytical skills, critical thinking, and the ability to study modes of representation in classic Spanish cinema through new case studies. It is recoverable in the second examination period.

Assessment in the second examination period

The evaluation in the second call will maintain, if applicable, the grades obtained in the blocks passed in the first call. The evaluation of the blocks failed or not presented will be carried out in the following way:

- Final written test (70%). The exam will include four medium-length questions, which require well-structured and reasoned answers. These questions assess the student's ability to explain key concepts, define relevant terms, and apply theoretical frameworks to practical cases. In order to pass the course, students must obtain a minimum score of 5 out of 10 on the exam.
- Submission of activities, outlines, summaries and/or assigned texts (30%). The individual assignment will consist of a theoretical-practical activity completed outside the classroom. Students will apply the course concepts and methodologies to specific cases and to the analysis of film texts not discussed during class. This activity fosters comprehension and analytical skills, critical thinking, and the ability to study modes of representation in classic Spanish cinema through new case studies.

Remarks

- Spelling and grammatical correctness will be required both in the exam and in the written work. Each failure will result in a reduction of the grade obtained, which may even lead to a fail.
- In the event that plagiarism is detected in an evaluation assignment, it may be graded with a numerical score of zero, regardless of any disciplinary procedures that may be initiated and, if applicable, the sanction imposed according to current legislation.
- Assignments involving fraudulent collaboration or composition with the assistance of artificial intelligence (ChatGPT or others) will not be accepted, except when their use is part of the course content or authorized by the teaching staff.
